Nominations are being sought for the Trauma National Clinical Network & Rōpū Rangatira.

The National Clinical Networks are a vital clinical enabler of the new health system. They involve health professions from across the system working with whānau and consumers to influence how we prioritise, drive system change, and remove unwarranted variation through the development of national standards and models of care.

The strategic objectives of the Trauma National Clinical Network for are:

- Right time, right place, right person: All patients receive high quality, time critical trauma care by those skilled in trauma management & associated rehabilitation throughout their trauma journey from the point of injury to returning to living in the community.
- Partnership: Partner with consumers and their whānau to co-design services to create better outcomes and patient and whānau experiences.
- Excellence for Māori through equity: Work with Te Tiriti partners and communities to explore how to provide excellent trauma care and improve trauma prevention.
- Workforce: Establish trauma and associated rehabilitation as speciality skillsets in order to increase the capacity & capability of the trauma healthcare workforce.
- Prevention: Engage with all interested parties, highlighting the impact of trauma on the population, to ensure that trauma prevention is prioritised.
- Networking: Practice an ethos of connection and collaboration, supported by pathways of care so patients and their whānau experience high quality seamless services. Aligned to strategic imperatives locally, regionally and nationally.

Trauma National Clinical Network and expert workstream, Rōpū Rangatira members are local, regional or national leaders who will:

- Understand service delivery across the continuum of care, and be prepared to think innovatively to bring about improvements
- Be committed to and understand equity and variation and how it impacts on people experiencing the effects of trauma and uphold the mana of Māori whānau
- Be able to evaluate different issues and perspectives and work in a way that facilitates collaboration among the different stakeholders
- Actively seek information and/or advice from others to help inform the work of the group and provide feedback to their constituency/district as appropriate.
- Communicate and report back on a regular basis from their own district, agency, or region

To find out more about the Trauma National Clinical Network and the Rōpū Rangatira, please read the draft Terms of Reference nomination here:

If you are expressing interest for the National Clinical Network, please note that the first National Clinical Network meeting is scheduled for 4th March 2024 between 9:30 am to 2:30 pm in Wellington.
