ECMO

CORE CONCEPTS AND NURSES' GUIDE TO
PERCUTANEOUS ECMO CANNULATION

Tuesday 29 July, 7pm – 8pm

PRESENTER:
BLESSEL JOY PADERNA

RN, Te Whatu Ora - Southern

Blessel Joy, known to most as Bless, has been a nurse for 15 years—beginning with five years in the Philippines and the past decade in New Zealand. She started her career humbly in the medical ward but truly found her spark in theatre nursing. Working in the operating theatre has been both meaningful and rewarding for her, offering countless opportunities for growth and learning. Over the years, Bless has developed a strong passion for cardiothoracic surgery—an area she finds not only technically challenging but also deeply fulfilling.

This presentation will explore the essential concepts of ECMO, with a focus on both the clinical foundations and the practical nursing considerations involved in percutaneous cannulation. It will also provide a concise step-by-step guide to the percutaneous cannulation process — from preparation to completion — highlighting this as a critical skill that demands meticulous planning, strict adherence to sterile technique to minimize infection risk, and seamless nursing support throughout the procedure.
