9. PERSONAL GRIEVANCE & DISPUTES PROCEDURE
RESOLUTION OF EMPLOYMENT RELATIONSHIP PROBLEMS

This clause sets out the process and services available to help resolve employment relationship problems. An employment relationship problem is any problem relating to or arising out of this employment relationship.

It includes personal grievances and disputes about the interpretation, application or operation of this agreement.

It does not include any problems relating to or arising from fixing new terms and conditions of employment (eg. bargaining, contract variation).

Step 1

In the first instance the problem should be referred to your Manager so that the problem can be dealt with speedily and effectively.

If the problem relates to a personal grievance as defined in the following step 3 the employee, or their representative must raise it by providing a written statement setting out:-

- (i) the nature of the grievance,
- (ii) the facts relied upon, and
- (iii) the remedy the employee seeks to achieve.

It is agreed that this process shall constitute “reasonable steps” for the purpose of s.114, Employment Relations Act 2000.

A personal grievance must be raised within 90 days of the action giving rise to it or coming to the employer’s attention, whichever is the later. If the employee fails to do so, the employer shall not be obliged to give the matter further consideration, unless the employee makes an application to the Employment Relations Authority for leave to raise it outside of the 90 day period.

Step 2

If the problem is not resolved within 21 days of raising it, it may be referred by either of the parties -to the Mediation Service of the Department of Labour OR it may be agreed to refer the matter to Arbitration or other alternative dispute resolution providers.

Either process will not preclude the problem from being referred to the Mediation Service or Employment Relations Authority.

To help resolve employment relationship problems that cannot be satisfactorily dealt with at employer or management level, the Department of Labour provides a variety of Mediation services. The Department has telephone, fax, internet and e-mail services where relevant information can be found or that indicates where relevant information can be found. The Department also publishes pamphlets, booklets, brochures and codes that may be of assistance. Where further help is needed, the Department has mediation specialists who will assist to resolve a particular problem.

Step 3

If settlement is not reached through mediation (or through any alternative agreed procedure), an application can be made to the Employment Authority which will resolve the matter, if it is satisfied that the parties have first attempted to resolve the problem in good faith, through mediation.

Personal Grievance means any claim by an employee against the employee's employer or former employer that the employee has in relation to the employee's employment been:-

- unjustifiably dismissed
